The first case on the calendar in this court yesterday

Once he was convicted of a robbery in the Bowery, and on another occasion was convicted of a brutal canadit upon a policeman.

Peter Munday and Lawrence Casey pleaded gollty to burgiary in the third degree, they having entered the dwelling house of James C Rappleyes, 414 Fourth ave me, No. I East Twenty ninth street, on the night of the Ist inst., by forcibly breaking open the window Officers caught the burgiars in the house, and found the implements of their nearlous profession with them. The Resorder said that the presoners were well known to the pelice, and were not entitled to any elemency. They ware each sont to the State Prison for five years.

James Gordon, indicted for burgiary in the first degree, Maded guilty to the third grade of that offence. On the night of the 18th of July be entered the house of Michael Mantel, 77 Forsyth street, and stole sixty dollars' worth of property. Burghars' tools, as well as the stolen property, were also found upon the prisoner. He was sent to the State Prison for five years.

ARR BOOGS PROFERTY?

Mr. Schuffer was placed on trial charged with stealing two dogs from the promises of Henry Gardiner, a dog fancier, on the 18th of July The complainant, who was a colored gentleman, said that he bought and sold and doctored dogs. One of the days was worth thirty dollars, and the other he valued at twenty five dollars. The prisoner, who is a returned soldier, sold one of the animals to George Kilee, another dog fancier, for twenty dollars. The owner identified the dog by a red collar.

Counsel for the prisoner argued that at common law the stealing of a dog was not a birceny

District Attorney Hall, in summing up the case, said that the human affectious entwined themselves around the dog quite as much as they did around the human species itself. They would find very often two carriages and by side in the Park, where in one a fond sud doting mother would have an infant in her arms caressing it, while the next carriage would contain a pup dog, which was receiving an equal amount of caresses. The dog was property. A little c while the next carriage would contain a pup dog, which was receiving an equal amount of caressea. The dog was reporty. A little child was not property, unless it thould happen to have come before the last proclasation in the Southern States. If any of the jupora happened to be a director in the insurance commany that insured Barnum's Museum, they might ke to have the principle which the counsel contended or established when Barnum sought to recover the alue of his "happy family" or his learned seal. He aderstood the counsel for the prisoner to contend for is doctrine that nothing could be property in the way fan animal, except it was the subject of food. Unstrunately they all knew something about the history of smages, for dogs' meat was sometimes used very largely Paris and in London; so that on the counsel's own owing the jury would have to convict his client. But, dinage aside, continued Mr. Hall, he contended that a jury ought to find a verdict of guilty, to show the ople at large that the man who steals a dog steals proriy, and does not steal "trush." As the value of the gwas not clearly estublished the Record r said the redict should be petty larceny, he having instructed a rendered, and the prisoner sentenced to the Penitenry for six months.

INWEL*

Manuel Oliver, charged with stealing a gold watch and hain, worth four hundred and fifty dollars, from Louise ekknon, 40 East Houston street, on the 23d of July, leaded guilty, and was sent to the State Prison for five mar. There was smother charge of a similar nature painst him. This individual, who is a foreigner, was in the habit of visiting fashionable houses of ill fame and calling the "jewels" of the immates, a crime which the coorder pronounced to be "very mean."

A DARING ROBERSY—WARNING TO GARROTERS.
Joseph Butler, jointly indicted with Moses Concklin for betty in the first degree, was placed on trial, charged (that serious crime.

Mr. Jacob P. Shorman, an engineer employed by the tiantic Steamship Company, was the complainant, hose statement was very concise, establishing the clear-to case of robbery that has been proved in this court for long time. Mr. Sherman, who stopped at Paige's Hotel, as returning from the theatre on the night of the 24th July, having parted with his friends on the corner of readway and Howard street a few minutes before relve. When he reached the corner of Greene street, we prisoner crossed the street and struck him a blow, but of the paid no attention to until he hit him another ow, which he returned, whereupon he was attacked by worker here.

ANOTHER CASE OF ROBERTY.

James Graham, who violently assaulted John Reagan is a drinking saloon, corner of Market street and East Broadway, on the night of the 11th of July, and robbed him of $400, pleaded guilty to grand larceny, and was sentenced to the State Prison for five years.

Broadway, on the night of the lith of July, and robbed him of $400, pleaded guilty to grand larceny, and was sentenced to the State Prison for five years.

Alonzo Jordan, indicted for a felonious assault on John Murray, at 16½ Downing street, on the 2d instant, pleaded guilty to a simple assault. It appears that Mr. Harray was trying to get a friend home who was moximated, when the prisoner came up and asked him if he had money, to which he replied in the affirmative, whereupon Jordan represented that he was a detective, but refused to show his badge. Soon after Jordan presented a pistol at Murray and told him if he said a word he would blow his brains out. The Recorder sent him to the Penitentiary for one year.

Margaret Rossell, an immate of a disreputable house in Mahington street, was tried and convicted of grand larseny, in stealing, on the 31st of July, $300 from John Quigley, a returned volunter. The officer who made the arrest succeeded in getting the money back, which was secreted in a hole in the wall. She was sent to the Maste Prison for two years.

Margie Smith, who stole seventy-five dollars from John Quigley, a returned volunter, in a house in Church street, pleaded guity, a young girl, pleaded guilty to stealing a bundred and fifty dollars worth of property from Charbert and the street of the plantaguity of the Penitentiary for two years.

A young this:

Jane Dixon, a young girl, pleaded guilty to stealing a bundred and fifty dollars worth of property from Charbette to the plantaguity of the property from Charbette to the plantaguity of the property from Charbette to the first plantaguity of the property from Charbette to the plantaguity of the property from Charbette to the countence placed in her, and was discharged for stealing. She reported that the daughter of Mrs. Thompson was an immate of the House of Refuge, which was a glaring falsehood. She west builty furing the proceedings, and so influenced a gentleman present that he offered to take her if the Court would consent to discharge her. T of July, by firing a loaded pistol at her, pleaded guilty to an assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to do bodily harm.

Counsel for the accused stated in extenuation of his effence that he had been in the navy twenty years; that the complainant was bits wife; that for the last nine months she spent seventeen hundred dollars, and that on his return he found her in a state of ricting and debauchery, when the pistol, which he seized, accidentally went off. He was remanded for sentence.

Themas Meakin, who pleaded guilty on Tuesday to grand larsany, was sent to the State Prison for two years.

attempt at larceny, and was sent to the Penitentiary fer six months.

Margaret Packwood, charged with stealing forty five dollars worth of property from John W. Cook on the 24th of July, pleaded guilty to petty larceny. She was sent to the Penitentiary for three months.

Daniel Judge, indicted for assaulting Maria Smith, 15 Batter street, on the 11th of July, by cutting her on the head with a knife, pleaded guilty to an assault and battery Remanded for sentence.

Nearly fifty prisoners were arraigned late in the afternoon, some of whom pleaded guilty to the charges preferred against them.

Wm. Hammersmith, James Collins, Patrick Shay and Elila Delphaney, each of them being indicted for larceny, pleaded guilty, and in consequence of their saving the Court the trouble of a trial the Recorder was quite lenient, for he modified the sentence to one year's imprisonment in the State Prison.

Walter Williams, a pickpocket, who stole a gold watch from Gardiner Carroll while he was looking at the procession on the 4th of July, pleaded guilty. It is a singular fact that the victim in this case—an elderly maninterceded with tears in his eyes in behalf of the pickpocket Bentence was postponed.

James Ferrell, indicted for stealing a set of harness from the establishment of Mr. Ham, pleaded guilty to an attompt, one of the employes having caught him in the act. He will be sentenced this morning.

The Court remained in session till after five o'clock, and adjourned to meet, at ten o'clock this (Friday) morning.

Admiral Farragut at Rye Beach.
[Correspondence of the Boston Traveller.]

ATLANTIC HOUSE, August 9, 1865.

The hot, sultry weather of the past few days has at length yielded to the influence of grateful showers and cooling breezes, which have kissed, in their journey to the sea, the mountain ridges of the far North.

The verdure of the fields has been restored and the forest sings a new song of gladness for the rain that has fallen on the dry and thirsty earth. A more perfect day than that of yesterday could not possibly be imagined. And how timely the cool, invigorating atmosphere, for the full enjoyment of the various pleasures suggested by the many resources of this locality, culminating at evening in another brilliant and agreeable ovation to the honored guest of Rye Beach—Vice Admiral Farragut.

The guests of the Ocean House, desirous of uniting in some marked democratic the relations.

ing in another brilliant and agrecable ovation to the honored guest of Rye Beach—Vice Admiral Farragut.

The guests of the Ocean House, desirous of uniting in some marked demonstration in honor of the noble here of the American navy, selected the 8th of August for a public reception at that house. In a matter like this, where all hearts beat in sympathetic unison, it was not difficult to carry out any plan that contemplated a compliment to the brave officer. But in order to perfect the necessary arrangements the following committees were appointed:—

C. mmitee of Arrangements—Joseph Blackwood, Esq., Philadelphia, Hon. John T. Heard, Boston; Aricott Wentworth, Esq., Boston; John Brewster, Esq., Cambridge, Charles A. B. Shepard, Esq., Boston; Col. David Committee on Reception—Hon. John T. Heart

wentworth, Esq., Boston; John Brewster, Esq., Cambridge, Charles A. B. Shepard, Esq., Boston; Col. David Campbell, Pittsfield.

Committee on Reception—Hon. John T. Heard, A. Wentworth, Esq., John Brewster, Esq.

Committee on Entertainment—Charles A. P. Shepard, Esq., Colonei David Campbell; Henry H. Atkins, Esq., For Manager:—Joseph Blackwood, Esq.; George Hodges, Esq., Oxford, Mass; William H. Thayer, Esq., Cincinnati; G. P. King, Esq., Boston.

It is only a week since the guests at the Atlantic House—where Admiral Farragut and family are spending the summer—gave an entertainment of a similar character and for a like purpose, a circumstance which, perhaps, rather animated the committee in their endeavors to make the second ovation more brilliant and enjoyable, if possible, than the first one given at a rival house. And to secure this result it was determined that the entertainment should be mainly of a metropolitan character, directed by skifful Boston artisans.

Were entrusted to the good taste of Colonel Wm. Beals, who entered into the work or smore. Upon approaching the house from the east the appearance was exceedingly imposing. On either side of the entrance were shields bearing the words "Liberty and Union," surrounded by a glory of fags and aurmounted by a large gilt eagle. Streamers and fags were festooned around over the balconice.

At exher side of the main staircase were tablets containing names of principal battle-fields, surmounted by shields and flags. Each column was wound with little flags, parti-colored, and from the ceiling streamers and pennants were carried to the side of the hall. The drawing room, being so heavily curtained, admitted of but little deconation.

In the centre window, opposite the entrance, was a festion of flags surrounding the motio "Welcome our Chief." The dining room looked exceedingly pretty and attractive. Opposite the entrance was a full length portrait of Washington, surmounted by an eagle and surrounded with heavy festoons of flags. On either side of the room were tablets containing "Peace," with shield of "Liberty—1776;" opposite to these were "Victory—1776—1865;" "Honor our Gallant Army and Navy." Pennants and streamers were festooned from Beals and assistants, but not altogether appropriate, considering the compliment was intended for a naval hero of the present time.

At an early hour of the evening Admiral Farragut, attended by the Committee of Reception, received the greetings of those present in the drawing room. This ceremony was followed by the presentation of the children of the guests of the Ocean House, who were drawn up in line, and each one had the satisfaction of shaking the distinguished officer by the hand—an act they will long remember with the liveliest satisfaction. A short time was passed in social conversation, during which the Admiral had an opportunity to pay his compliments to the ladies who surrounded him.

THE HONORS OF THE FIRST DANCE being declined by Mrs. Heard, wife of Hon. John T. Heard, of Boston, chairman of Committee of Arrangements, to whom it properly belonged, there was some little discussion as to whom the committee should extend this much desired privilege. Had it been left to the Admiral's own choosing it would, no doubt, have been a difficult matter for the gallant here to have selected from such a galaxy of beauty, and the committee, therefore, hit upon a happy relief. The name of all the ladies in the house were placed in a vessel, from which the favored one should be drawn.

This created some little merriment, as the first three or four names drawn out were of elderly ladies, or those who never took any part in the festive dance. However, the choice finally fell upon Mrs. Bearse, of Boston, and the first cotilion was made up of the following named indice:—Mrs. Bearse, Mrs. C. A. B. Shepard, Mrs. Russell Bates, of Boston, and Mrs. Blackwood, of Philadelphia. The dancing now became general, and the rotunda presented a very gay and animated appearance—the choice finally fell upon Mrs. Bearse, of Boston, and the first cotilion was made up of the following named indice:—Mrs. Bearse, Mrs. C. Bailey, Commander sucnols, of the Portsmeath rard; Commander Pritchard, Marshal John S. Keyes, Hon. A. D. White, of Syracuse, and the Rev. Chas. Follow, the tutor of Admiral Farragut nearly forty years ago. Mrs Farragut, being in mourning, was not present. During the afterhoon she visited the Ocean House for the purpose of seeing the decorations, in compliment to the ladies of the house.

At eleven o'clock the company repaired to the drawing room to partake of a light and agreeable repast, instead of a formal support, prepared under the direction of Mr. J. B. Smith, of Boston. Dancing was again resumed, and kept up with spirit till an early hour in the morning. The guests retired shortly after midnight, expressing much satisfaction with the enjoyments of the evening.

Singular Case of Incendiarism.

[From the Philadelphia Ledger, August 10.]

A girl, fourteen years old, who resides with her parents in Reckless street, Second ward, had a hearing at the Central station yesterday on the charge of arson. It would seem, from the circumstances of the case, that the girl has a mania for the commission of arson. On the 22d of July the dwelling No. 8. Reckless street, from which the family of the occupant, Mr. John Wilson, was absent, was fired by throwing a match through a broken pane of glass in the second story back window, which was reached from a flat on the top of the kitchen. The fire was soon discovered, and extinguished before it had made much progress. Its origin was of course a matter of surprise at the time, as there had not been any fire in the part of the boulding in which it commenced for a long time. On the following day there were five fires in Nos. 4 and 6 Reckless street, kindled in different parts of the houses within a short time of each other. One of them gave rise to an alarm of fire, and fire apparatus were drawn to the place. As the aftair was involved in a good deal of mystery, much excitement was naturally created.

One of the fires was kindled on a second story back window sill, reached from a flat; another to a tidy on a fourth in a closet; and a fith in a lott. Though the girl was not seen to kindle any them, it was quite certain, from the circumstances that she alone could have made them. On one or two occasions she was seen to go up stairs, and the fires were discovered immediately after she returned. The matter was investigated by the Fire Marshal, and he was not long in cartsying himself who the guilty agent was; but, to put it beyond a doubt, she finally made a full confression. Upon this confession she was yesterday committed for trial. During the hearing the accused appeared to be much affected. Her incendary acts annot be accounted for on any other hypothesis than that she is a monomaniae on the subject. There could not have been any feeling of r

The Danville (Va.) Appel says:—It is rumored that General Joseph E. Johnston is willing to accept the position of superintendent of some railroad. For this position his high executive ability and great scientific attainments eminently fit him, and one of the many reconstructing reads of the South would do well to secure his services. The stockholders of our own Richmond and Danville Railroad will soon be called upon to elect a president, at which time they could not better subserve their interest and the State's than by uniting the offices of president and superintendent, and appointing General Johnston therete. His military status cannot be urged against his holding a place so entirely separate from politics; and his practical good sense, combined with his thorough knowledge of the improvements in the science of mechanics, will soon make the road the bost in the State, as it is already the most important.

An AFFECTING INCIDENT.—When the Fortieth Missouri arrived on the steamer Olive Branch, a woman, with joy sparkling in her eyes, hurried on board. With a buoyant step and a palpitating heart she scanned the different companies drawn up on the deck. "Where is Company K?" she eagerly inquired. "Over there," replied a soldier, pointing in the direction of Company K. The woman hastened to the spot, and, passing rapidly in frost of the sunburnt faces of the men, gazed at each with a keen, penetrating glance. She was looking for her husband, who had written to her from Montgomery, Alabama, that the regiment would start for home on the following day, and that in a short time he would be with her. Once more she passed along the line, scanning the faces with a closer scrutiny, but failed to find the one she sought. At length she timidly addressed one of the soldiers: "Is this Company K?" "Yes." "I am looking for my husband—where is he?" "What is his name?" "Walker." "Oh, he feil overboard and was drowned in thr Alabama river." The poor woman clasped her hands over her face, and, without saying another word, passed slowly from the boat back to the shore, seeming to walk without the use of her eyes. Her heart was too full for utterance, and the great agony that had come so suddenly upon her scaled her lips and checked the fountain of her tears; but the men of iron nerve who saw her and knew the cause of her sorrow weept hke children.—Missouri Dem craf, August 1.

Samuel Caswell, of Barnstead, N. H., is one hundred and six years of age, and has never drank intoxicating liquors nor used tobacco in his life. He has never worn spectacles, and his eyessight has been perfectly good till within a year. He has mowed grass every summer since he was twelve years old till the present, and has never had a physician but three times, and those lately. His wife is living in good benith, at the age of ninety-siz.

Major General Winfield Scott Hancock, commanding the Middle Department, left Baltimore on Sunday last on a visit to St. Louis, and will probably be absent for three weeks. For more than four years General Hancock has been actively engaged with the army in various fields, and has scarcely enjoyed a day's release from the most ardous duties, and no man in the regular army could have asked for a furlough with a octter grace than himtheir heads by the miners while they are pursuing their hardy toil.

Lord Palmerston, at eighty one, has apparently no immediate intention of yielding up the pleasures of this life, whatever may be his purpose with regard to the cares of State. He has just entered one of his horses for the Derive of 1847.

Lord Milton, well known on this side of the water for his Rocky Mountain explorations, has been returned to Parliament for South Yorkshire at the head of the poll. He is rather an irrepressible young gentleman of twenty-six, and was sometime since brought before a London magistrate in connection with a prominent member of the London demi monde, a lite-d-lite ride in a barouche, and a missing diamond earring.

Madame Ristori has just been the victim of a considerable robbery. She possesses a handsome apartment at Rome, in which she intended to pass the winter. She has now learned that the person in whose charge it was left has absconded, after having sold all the furniture. The loss amounts to above ten thousand france.

As an illustration of English miners in the nine-teenth century it deserves to be generally noticed that an express train on the Great Western line was lately kept waiting nearly five and twenty minutes for the convenience of Colonel Lord Lindsay, the new member of Parliament for Berkshire, and the husband of Lord Overstone's daughter.

All lovers of music and song who have had the pleasure of hearing M. Schnorr von Carolsfeld, the German tener, sing Hendel's and Hayda's sacred music will be sorry to hear that he died a few days ago at Dresden of typhus fever. M. von Carolsfeld was one of the best oratorio singers in Europe.

It is proposed to creet a monument, in the form of a marble statue, to the memory of Sir Joseph Faxton, and to place it in the garden of the Crystal Palace at Sydenham.

A good story is told of the Bury (England) election. It is said that Mrs. Peel went to canvass an elector in behalf of her husband. Mr. Frederick Peel, and found that the man whom she wanted was not at home. His wite, however, volunteered the information that he could not vote for hie. Peel because he had voted for Mr. Phillips and had received £25 for doing so, whereas he would have got only £20 from the other side.

The practice of paying the expenses of candidates at amons the gothing men of the borough. Not is the practice comment to successful candidates. Mr. Gladistony's Oxford committee have adopted a similar course. There are some well known men who will be conspicuous by their absence from the British House of Commens—notably Mr. Bernal Osborne, whose non-return leaves the power of bitterly josular invective with Mr. Horsman alone. Mr. Seymour Fitzgerald, and Major Beresford, Frall's friend, W. B., almost the last of the old tories. If there is one person qualified to speak to the truth or falsity of the adage, "A short (Parliamentary) life and a merry one," it is Mr. Thomas Brassey, whose membership of the House did not fast two weeks. It is stated in the House of Tomes that Mr. Denman's defeat at Tiverton was peculiarly meritrying to him, inasmuch as he had been marked by the Fremier as the Speaker of the House of Commons whenever Mr. Denison thought at to retire from the post, for which he is not pre-emmently fitted.

English papers affirm with great positiveness that the Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Gusen's Berich, Sir A. Cockburn, and the Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, Sir W. Erle, are to beraised to the poerage. The prominent object of the arrangement will be to increase the judicial power of the House of Lords, and strengthen the cause of Law Reform, by attaching to the side of Lord Creaworth two able, enlightened and liberal lawyers.

There is no truth in the story that M. de Girardin has bought the Pompeion villa of Prince Napoleon.
